In a tweet following the shooting on Saturday, San Francisco District Attorney George Gascon said it was "unusual" and "unexpected" that someone opened fire while the police officer was sitting in his patrol car. He tweeted, “The sight of a peace officer makes us all safer. This officer was just doing his job. His faithful dog was with him.” Gascon said the officer, a 20-year veteran, was shot in the leg, but “his healing will be swift.” He said the officer has responded to the scene, and there is no threat to public safety. Gascon said that the alleged shooter, who was shot and killed by other officers, “was troubled and was in the midst of self-medicating.”

The district attorney said that it was “unfortunate” and “painful” that the officer was wounded, but that “we continue to be thankful that he’s alive.” Gascon’s tweets came after San Francisco police reported that the armed man had shot the officer while the patrol car was parked in the Bayview district on Saturday afternoon. Police have not provided a motive for the shooting. Police union officials said they had received reports that the man, wearing a dark jacket, a dark cap and a bandana over his face, was fired on. One report said the man had fired two shots. The police union has not identified the officer. Gascon said the “security breach” of a police officer sitting in a patrol car was “heartbreaking.” Q: What should we do with "filetype detection"
