Sense of place Sense of place (SOP) is a psychological sense that draws attention to location, space, or environment. It has been recognized as one of the three basic ways of experiencing a place (along with sense of belonging, and immersion in the environment), according to the famous psychoanalytic concept of the three-place theory. Lippard Richard Henry George Lippard (8 February 1859, New York City – 25 December 1933, Manhasset, New York) was a notable art historian and author of the pioneering work on art history in the United States, the 1891 art-historical classic A History of the Italian Renaissance. Lippard, born into a family of strong New York commercial and legal interests, made his living as a teacher in Boston and New York City before becoming the first curator of the Brooklyn Museum, the first curator of the new Museum of Modern Art in 1929, and head of the Department of Art at Harvard University in 1929–1933. He was married three times and left three daughters. Lippard's work attempted to combine a history of art with aesthetics. Thus, he believed that it was crucial to understand the artists who made the paintings rather than merely organizing and interpreting their work as a historian would. A History of the Italian Renaissance is an attempt to describe the 15th-century Italian Renaissance rather than as a story of artists, patrons and institutions. In order to highlight the "Italy" of artists such as Leonardo da Vinci and Botticelli, he chose to emphasize the study of objects, the social phenomena of Italian Renaissance Florence, rather than the more narrow, purely artistic consideration. Lippard is also known for the typology of the work of the Renaissance artist Raphael, which was a key contribution to the history of the French Renaissance. Secretory production of the yeast Saccharomyces cerevisiae alpha-amylase in Pichia pastoris. Two glycosylated, secretory yeast amylase cDNAs, designated AmyR and AmyB, were cloned from Saccharomyces cerevisiae and Pichia pastoris and expressed in these eukaryotic microorganisms, respectively. The protein products of both genes were shown to be secretory proteins when expressed in P. pastoris (sec1- mutant strain) rather than in S. cerevisiae. When secreted by P. pastoris, AmyR and AmyB were expressed at levels of approximately 25 mg/l and approximately 50 mg/l in culture supernatant fluids, respectively. AmyB expressed in P. pastoris contained the endogenous alpha-amylase activity of about 200 U/l in the culture supernatant. The protein products of AmyR and AmyB showed specific activities of about 400 and 400 U/mg at pH 5.0 and 50 degrees C and about 250 and 250 U/mg at pH 3.0 and 50 degrees C, respectively.Australia's woes over 50-over cricket continue, with the ODI side having been hammered at home during the recent English summer. Michael Clarke has encouraged the selectors to consider axing five of the current squad, with the team's biggest stars voicing their concerns. Clarke has still not played a red-ball game in almost two years after undergoing surgery for a right knee injury, and his place at the top of the batting order is under threat. QUICK SINGLE ABD Kicked out of England squad "I am not going to lie, it is something I have thought about and discussed with the guys," Clarke said ahead of the first Test of the current triangular tour. "I really have had a lot of conversation with some of the guys and it would be nice if some of the other guys can start to be more vocal than they have been over the last few years and start to bring themselves into the picture too." Clarke has been in outstanding form in recent times, averaging 83 with the bat, and is spearheading Australia's attack with the ball. Warner is under fire too after being dropped for the recent series against Sri Lanka, which ended in a 3-0 defeat. Warner not returning to batting rankle's Billy The veteran has looked particularly rough with
